

Ms. Sharon Olmstead

Ms. Olmstead is the Head of Regulatory & Development Policy at Novartis. In this role, she manages teams based in Europe, North America, and Asia-Pacific responsible for global regulatory policy and intelligence activities within Regulatory Affairs, Global Drug Development.

Ms. Olmstead is a recognised leader within the global biopharmaceutical industry, recently serving as the chair of the Regulatory Policy and Technical Standards Committee of IFPMA (2013-2018) to advance global harmonization, support regulatory systems strengthening in low and middle-income countries, and engage multilateral regulatory institutions and organizations including WHO.

Prior to joining the pharmaceutical industry 22 years ago, she worked for the US Federal Government including the US Food and Drug Administration. She received a bachelor's of science in biology from Old Dominion University in the US.